To Hack or Circle

Nicknamed Hack Circle from the 1990s by the media, the former site of the 1989 amphitheatre at the intersection of High and Cashel Streets is to be renamed as part of an upgrade that will include an extension to the vintage tram route. A Christchurch City Council spokesman is reported saying public submissions on a new name for the area could be the basis for a popular vote.

Known simply as "The Triangle" for a century, the triangular junction was matched to the south-east by the "Clocktower" junction at High and Manchester Streets and "The Bottleneck" junction at the intersection of High, Hereford and Colombo Streets to the northwest.

"The Triangle" intersection was the origin of the city's commercial precinct. Here was the 1851 passenger terminus for coaches to the ferry at Heathcote; first hotel (The White Hart); first restaurant (Birdsley's); first chemist shop (Wallace & Co); fire station and the Customs House.

If you want to have a say or have a name you believe would suit this iconic site please let me know and I will ensure its gets to the right people for consideration.

CHILL ON THE TERRACE '09

On the banks of the river Avon, in one of the most picturesque places in Christchurch, The Terrace bars and restaurants will host a free outdoor music concert on Saturday 23 May....Chill on The Terrace.

Chill on the Terrace is an official supporter of New Zealand Music Month and celebrates the diversity and maturity of our music scene, with live bands and DJs.

The gig starts at 6pm with DJ Sticky Fingaz entertaining the crowds on the banks of the river and beginning a line-up of great home-grown bands, including rock roots band dDub, Sacha Vee and Lotus Hartley.

As co-founder of what is hoped to become an annual event in NZ Music Month and year, Cookie Time is the event's major sponsor. The event is also proudly sponsored by the Central City Business Association, Lindauer, Canadian Club and Jagermeister Chill on The Terrace fully endorses the "Get into it, not out of it" message and this R18 event will be run accordingly. It has the support of Christchurch City Council and the Central City Business Association.

Chill on The Terrace is about responsible people having a great time and supporting awesome NZ music.
